Joe Labruzzo Elected to MCAA Board of Directors Texas contractor has a proven leadership record

ROCKVILLE, MD—Joe Labruzzo was elected to the Mechanical Contractors Association of America (MCAA) Board of Directors during the association's annual convention in Wailea, Maui, Hawaii, earlier this month.

Mr. Labruzzo is the president and COO of Way Engineering, Ltd., a full-service mechanical contractor located in Houston, Texas.

He is active in the association on both the national and local levels. At the national level, he served on the International Pipe Trades Joint Training Committee. At the local level, he is a past president and board member for both the MCA of Houston and the MCA of Texas.

He has participated on the MCA of Houston's Pipefitters Negotiations and JATC Committees; and Plumbers Negotiations and JATC Committees. In addition, he is a Health and Welfare, Pension and Apprentice Funds Trustee and served on the MCA of Texas Joint Labor/Management Oversight Committee.

The Mechanical Contractors Association of America, Inc. (MCAA) serves the unique needs of approximately 2,500 firms involved in heating, air conditioning, refrigeration, plumbing, piping, and mechanical service. We do this by providing our members with high-quality educational materials and programs to help them attain the highest level of managerial and technical expertise. MCAA includes the Mechanical Service Contractors of America, the Plumbing Contractors of America, the Manufacturer/Supplier Council, the Mechanical Contracting Education and Research Foundation and the National Certified Pipe Welding Bureau.
